

11

27. The message center as in claim 26 wherein each network message originated on the non-cellular communications network includes as the destination address a cellular telephone number of a certain mobile station, the functionality further operating after network message conversion to transmit a short message service message comprising the converted network message to the certain mobile station over the cellular network.

12

* * * * *